PUBLIC CONSULTING

Consultation with the interested public

Public consultation and involvement in the regulatory process is carried out in order to gather information on the interests, attitudes and proposals of the interested public regarding a particular public policy in order to raise the level of understanding and acceptance of policy objectives, but also to identify weaknesses and negative effects. remove.

At its session held on 21 November 2009, the Government of the Republic of Croatia adopted the Code of Consultation with the Interested Public in Procedures for Adopting Laws, Other Regulations and Acts (OG 140/09) in order to facilitate interaction with citizens and representatives of the interested public in the democratic process, and encouraging more active citizen participation in public life. The Code sets out general principles, standards and measures for consulting the interested public in the procedures of enacting laws, other regulations and acts of state bodies, which regulate issues and take positions of interest for the common good.

The obligation to carry out the procedure of consulting the interested public is prescribed by the Act on the Impact Assessment of Regulations (OG 90/11), which regulates the procedure, documents, manner of annual planning of normative activities, competent bodies, manner of consulting the interested public in the process of adopting new regulations, includes an analysis of their potential benefits and costs, thus contributing to a more streamlined evidence-based policy-making process.

The Right to Access Information Act (OG 25/13 and 85/15), which also legally obliges institutions to conduct public consultations, stipulates that state administration bodies conduct public consultations through the central state internet portal for public consultations (e-counseling) which started on April 27, 2015.

During 2015, the Central Bureau of Statistics conducted 2 consultations (on the Draft Proposal of the Official Statistics Act and the Draft Proposal of the Annual Implementation Plan of Statistical Activities of the Republic of Croatia 2016).

On the Central State Portal "e-Counseling" until 04.07.2021. A consultation with the interested public on the Draft Proposal for the Strategy for the Development of Official Statistics of the Republic of Croatia 2021-2030 was opened.

On the Central State Portal "e-Counseling" until 04.07.2021. a consultation with the interested public was opened on the Draft Proposal Program of Statistical Activities 2021-2027.
